Responsibility

The company Lagap endeavors to always provide correct data und regular updates. However, Lagap cannot guarantee the accuracy and completeness of the data on this site. Lagap cannot be held responsible for any occurrences resulting from the use of this site or of those connected to it by hypertext links. Lagap reserves the right to modify its site and its annexes at any time without prior notice. Use of this site and its contents ensues under the entire responsibility of its users; the same applies to sites with which the Lagap site is linked by hypertext. The responsibility of Lagap and of the persons who participated in the design, implementation, and set up of this site is not engaged in case of direct or indirect damages resulting from the access to this site, its use, or a denial of access to the site, or from errors or omissions in its contents; this provision applies also to sites with which this site is linked by hypertext.

Nature of the information

The information on this site serves to provide information to the users of the products of the company Lagap in accurate but sometimes succinct form. Links allow health professionals to gain access to more detailed information. Some official links are used for purely informative aims in direct relation with the products of the company Lagap, or supplement the data published on this site. The information found in the information for patients or in the instructions for use of the products may be modified during the regular updates performed by the control authorities. In no case does such information dispense the user from a medical visit or from obtaining advice by a health professional. Comments submitted with the aim to improve or supplement the data provided are welcome. The information pertaining to the use and specificities of a Lagap product are individually adapted to the markets, norms and requirements of the health authorities of each country. The information published on this site generally conforms to the norms and requirements of the Swiss and/or European control authorities.

Links to third-party sites

The links to other sites have the sole aim to facilitate the consultation of this site. The existence of links to other sites in no way signifies that Lagap approves or controls the contents of those third-party sites. The company Lagap cannot be made responsible for a third-party site, its contents or the exploitation of its contents.

Brand names

All brand names of the products of the company Lagap presented on this site are protected and require an authorization for their use. Some brand names pertain only to some countries where the products of the company Lagap are distributed. More than one protected brand name may exist for a single product. The brand names of suppliers working with Lagap are owned by these manufacturers. They carry the full responsibility for their use. Only they are entitled to authorize an extended use of their brand names.

Copyright

The site of the company Lagap as well as the information contained therein is provided exclusively for information purposes. As far as possible, the articles quoted cite their author(s) and/or source(s). Any reproduction, retransmission or other exploitation of any kind of this information is strictly forbidden. Requests for authorization to reproduce data, photographs, schemata, graphs, or clips displayed on this site must be addressed to the webmaster of the company Lagap.
